don't quit, just remember the roads that we followed this year, and I'm sure it will seem easier. The world needs a lot more people like you Kate, don't let it down. I want to come back to the States and find you really happy for a change, finished with the users of the world, and able to realize that you deserve nothing but the best. The saying might be a little old, but the meaning will always be real, you've got a friend.

Thanks Kath, for everything

I love you.

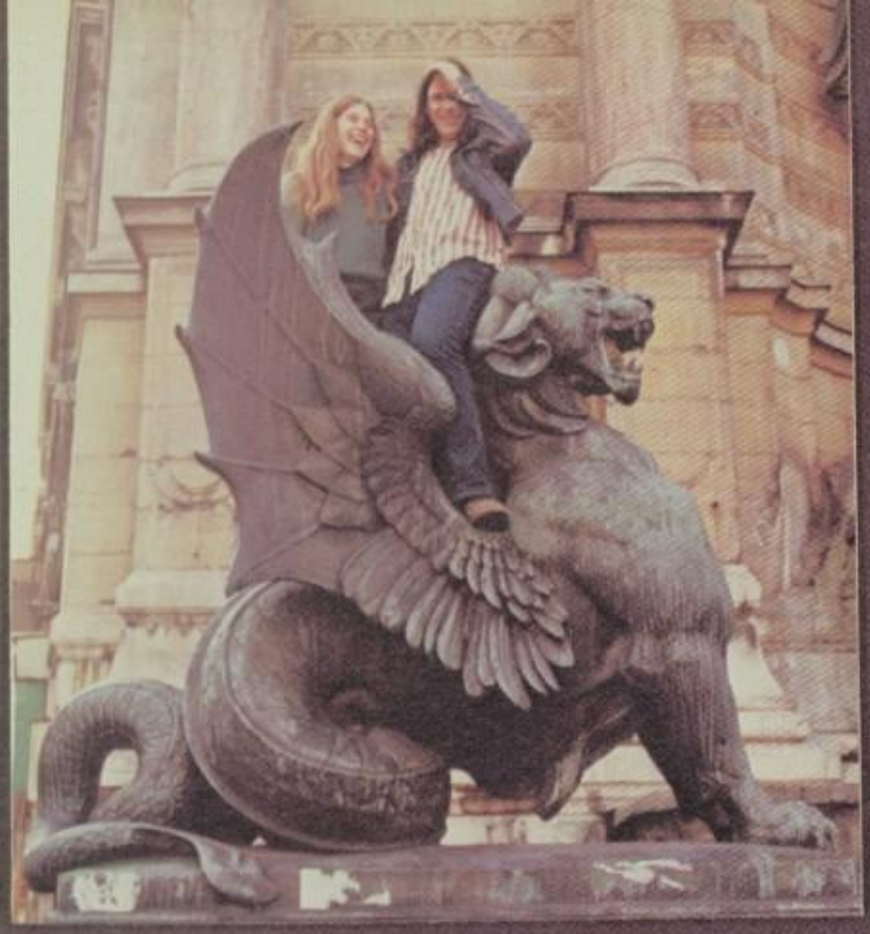
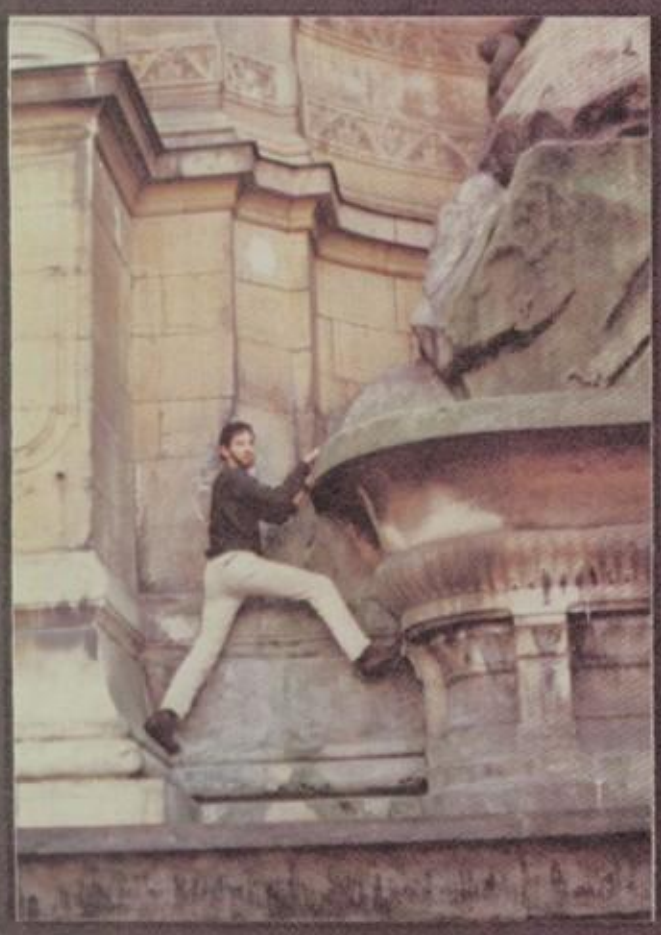
NANCY
LES "3 MAILLETZ"





Dedication

1970 marked the entrance of one of our school's most gifted faculty members. Since his arrival, he has taught Upper School English, coached the boys' baseball team and chaperoned trips to Russia, Clavière, Egypt and London. As if this weren't enough, he found the time to write a novel, WHEN THE BOUGH BREAKS, hold the Number One position on the faculty tennis team and play softball every Sunday in the Bois de Boulogne.

To his students, he is an able, interesting teacher and friend. No one dreads going to his class; they all look forward to it. He is fair, has a good sense of humor and doesn't blow his cool. He inspires his students to perform and is always willing to lend a hand.

His success also extends to his home life. His attractive and warm wife, Donna, currently teaches third grade at ASP. To his daughter, Heidi, a first grader, he is not only Daddy, but her favorite baby-sitter.

In this special Bicentennial Year, when people are honoring heroes of the past, the class of 1976 is honoring their hero of the present, Mr. Robin Cody.

- Nancy Lucido '77

". . .But there are two things I could do. Actually there are a lot of things I could do, but I have narrowed it down to two. Both involve leaving Calamus. That much is set. But I cannot decide what I am going to do until I can see clearly what I have already done. Or what has been done to me. Maybe I haven't done anything yet. The idea is to get it straight before I do, to sort out some things that happened from other things that very likely didn't happen."

". . .The next pitch was wide, but the one after that came right down the gut, the same spot as the first one, and I was ready. The ball seemed suspended there in front of me, frozen, so clear and hard I could see the seams on it as I leaned in to meet it. And it's a funny thing—you can tell right BEFORE you hit a ball whether you've rung the bell or not, so the staccatto crack of the bat and the feel of hard leather through the wood, almost no feel at all when it's right, is just a replay of what you already know must happen."

". . .The raft is completed, as a matter of fact. Cyd and I worked on it most of the summer, and it's sitting down there at the base of the dam, where Thompson Creek joins the Calamus. Cyd is going. It's my trip, she understands, and she wants to go.

"And I know already what's going to happen. The current will take us down the Calamus and into the Willamette, out the Columbia and into the Pacific. Once we're out there the first big storm will blow us back to shore. I know what will happen, but I have to make the trip, to see if it's true."

(The above are brief excerpts from Mr. Cody's, WHEN THE BOUGH BREAKS.)

SENIORS

Dear Kathy again,
It's been great watching you wear your FRANCE teeshirts this year.

God grant me the serenity to accept the things I cannot change, the courage to change the things I can,
and the wisdom to know the difference.

ALWAYS SMILE: It pleases your freind:
and makes your enemies wonder what you're up to.

Thanks to all those who made A.S.P. a great place to be. Good riddance to those who made it miserable.

On laisse tous un jour, un peu de nôtre vie sur une table dans le fond d'un café, sur une table que l'on oublie jamais.
Michel Fugain

Au revoir, Christine et Colette.

Silence is golden, so shut-up and get rich.

This year is dedicated to Jan,
Jennifer, Marg, Glib, Doug, Cyril,
Craig, Dave, and everybody in Pool's Cove

The rains have come and nights do last quite long,
But I do love you evermore
For though the time doth make the tribulations grow,
Much beauty in yourself do you beston.

For everything there is a season; and a time for every purpose under the plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted;

a time to kill, and a time to heal;
a time to break down, and a time to build up;
a time to weep, and a time to laugh;
a time to mourn, and a time to dance;
a time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together;
a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing;
a time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away;
a time to rend, and a time to sew;

GERALD RHEAULT

Why are you standing here? I'm waiting to cross the street. Why not cross now; there are no cars. I'm waiting for a green light. But there's no traffic light. Then I shall have to wait for one. But chances are there will never be one here. That's quite possible. In fact over the last five years that I've been waiting here I have evaluated the situation and have come to the conclusion that most likely there will never be a traffic light here. Then why not go down the street where there is a traffic light? I like it here. But you'll spend your whole life waiting. Everybody spends their whole life waiting. I just happen to be doing it in one place.

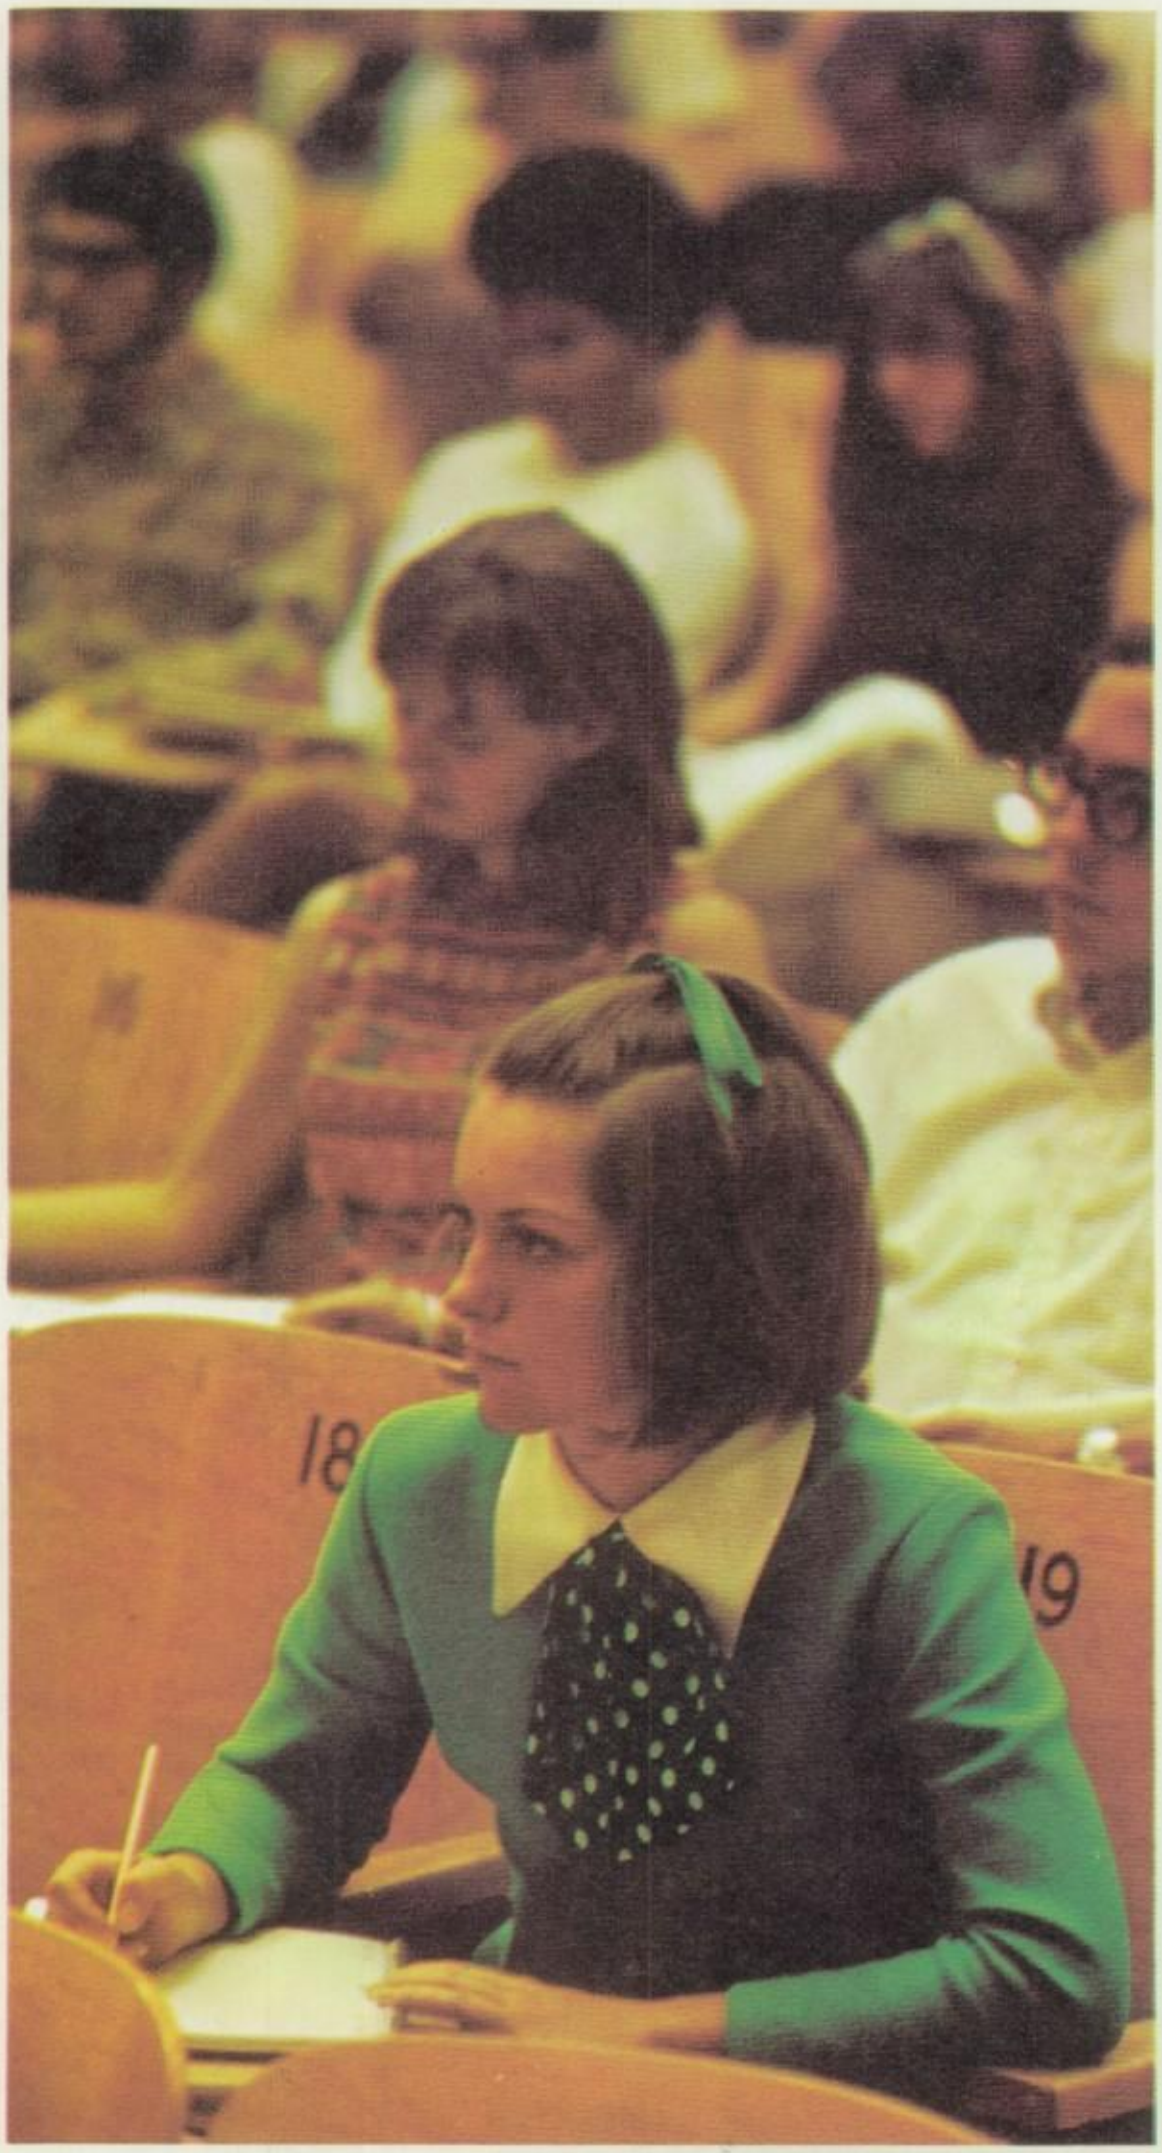
Students. For them, the key to the future is a knowledge of the past.



Experience is the world's greatest teacher.

And in the experience of others, students like these are finding the tools with which to build their lives. Because they know how right the philosopher was who said that "those who cannot remember the past are condemned to repeat it."

If there's one thing that distinguishes today's students from those of even a few generations ago, it's an added dimension of seriousness. Whether they're studying to become engineers, scientists, teachers, or simply better human beings. Their aim is to make a contribution to society. And, to them, that means not only long hours of work and reflection, but a determination to profit by the mistakes of those who went before.

Because they know that the hopes of tomorrow rest on their shoulders, they prepare themselves to help make a better world.

In our own way, that's what we strive for, too.

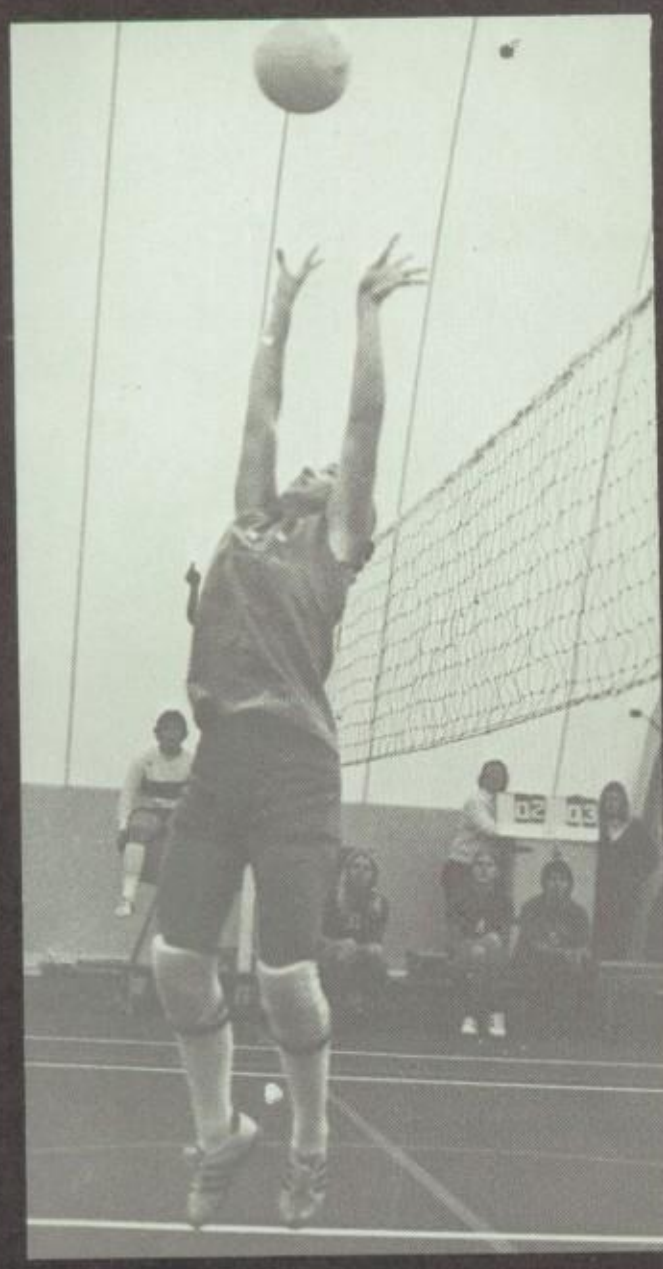
Girl's Volleyball

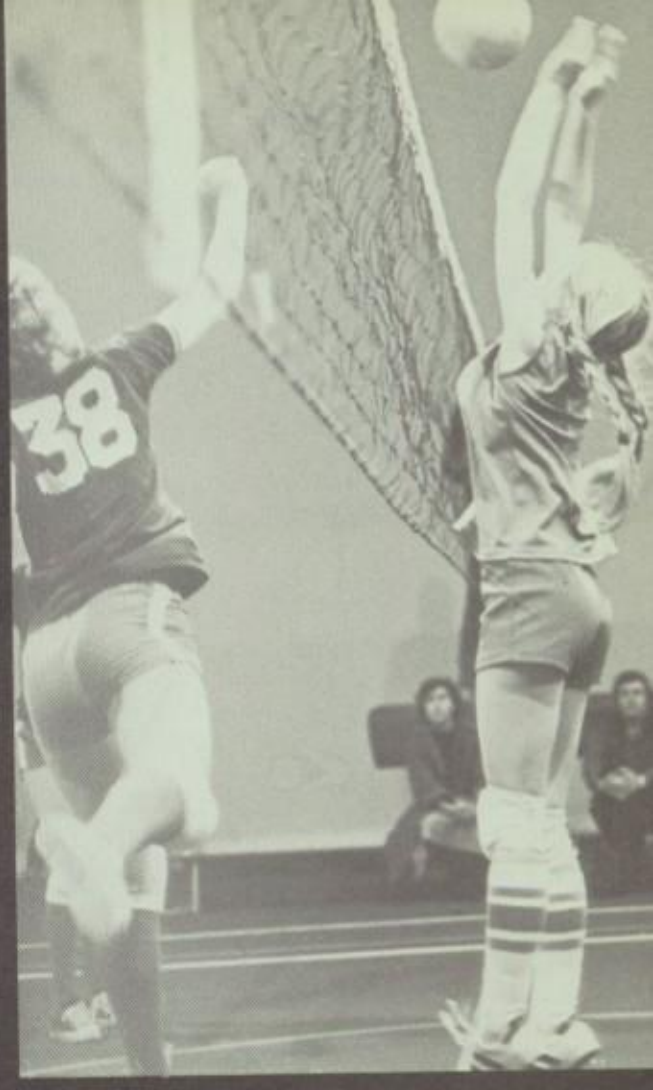


The ASP girls' Varsity volleyball team started out the season with a new coach and ten "left-over" players from last year. The game schedule was well selected, as the team started by playing Antwerp, an easy team, and played progressively harder teams.

The team's coach, Eric Rolfson, was originally inexperienced, but as the season progressed, he proved to be a good coach, making the team work together and giving each individual confidence. Eric proved to be a talented musician, and entertained the teams on the trips. He also impressed everyone with his great coordination by falling during practice and ended up with his leg in a cast for five weeks. As a result of this, the girl's Varsity and Junior Varsity had to play a strong team in The Hague without a coach, and were defeated for the first time in the season.

At the tournament, the girls did fairly well, and after the first day found themselves second in their division. The team was then forced to play the London girls and easily won the first set of the game. However, London managed to win the next two games but the team was still proud for being the only ones to win a match against London. Later the girls defeated Brussels, and came in third, after London and The Hague.

Most of the team will be returning next year; perhaps they will do even better than they did this year.



Dearest Kathy- So your from weston eh? Volleyball was a trip ; Air France , strange rendez-vous at the Holiday Inn, Biddy-up ; you play tennis really well , but you dont draw so good; - thanks for making our two years overseas an excellent time . Hope we can get together aux Etats Unis next year

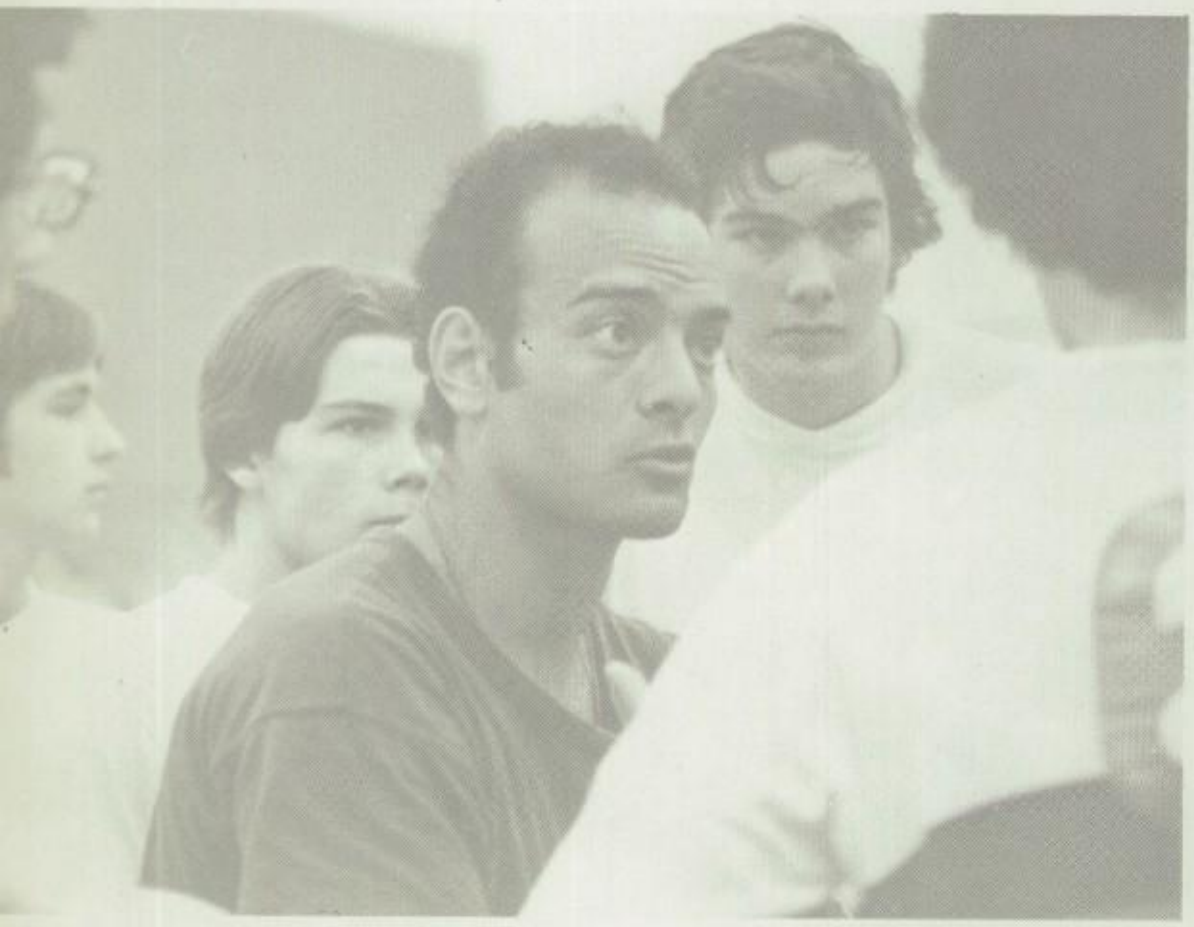
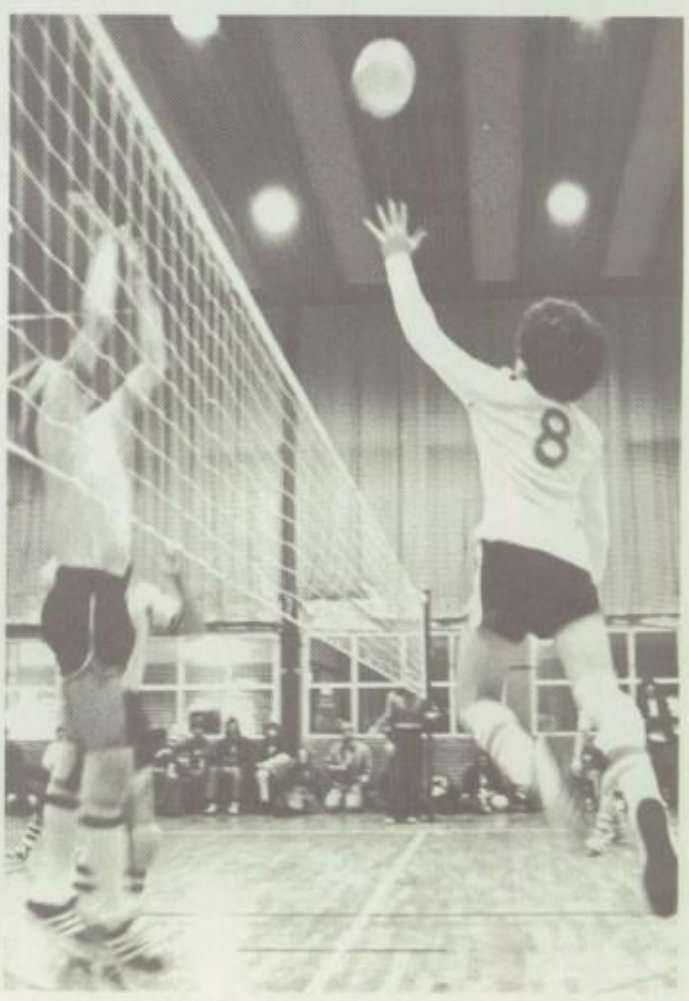
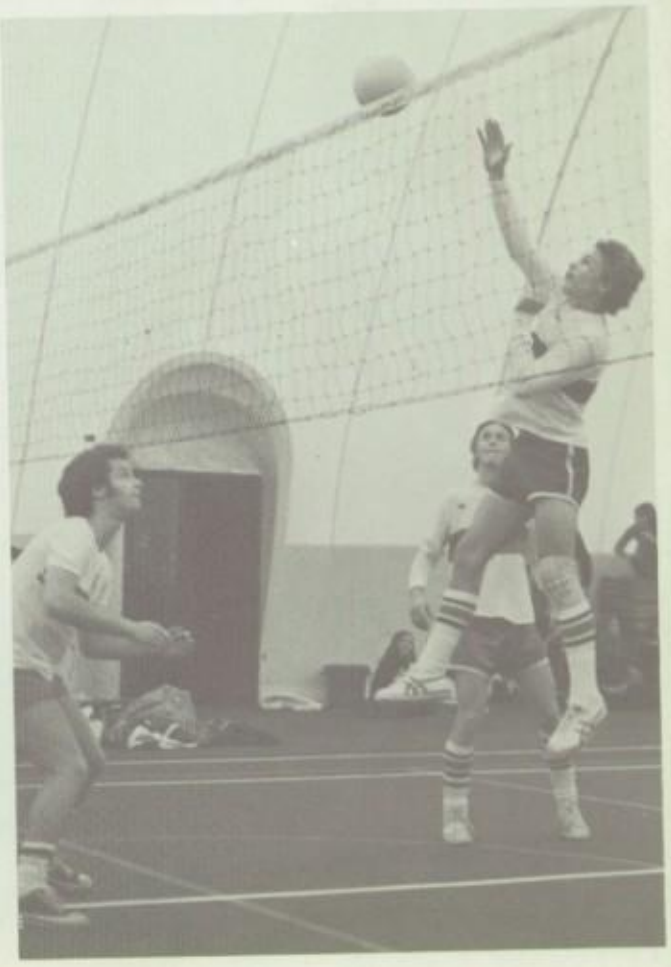
Boys' Volleyball





With a new coach and nine rookies, the ASP volleyball team was able to pull off a fairly good season this year, taking third in the ISST tournament. With big victories over Brussels, St. John's and Antwerp, the team took off to a great start, but was soon put down by The Hague in a tough match losing 3 games to 2. It was then off to London for the tournament where they started off well by beating Brussels and St. John's again. They lost a hard one to Frankfurt in three games, but were still able to make it into the semi-finals against London, the eventual tournament winners. They gave London a tough match but lost 0-2, with the first game going up to 14-16. It was then a battle for 3rd or 4th place against the arch-rivals, The Hague. No contest this time - two straight games, and ASP was third.



Soccer

The ASP team had a winning season this year compared to last year's bad one. Led by captain George Doolittle and coach Pierre Erdelyi, the ASP soccer eleven managed to pull a 7-4-0 season. Games scores were:

ASP vs	ESP	4-1	ASP vs	Vienna	2-5
ASP vs	ESP	2-3	ASP vs	London	0-2
ASP vs	ESP	3-2	ASP vs	Frankfurt	5-0
ASP vs	Antwerp	4-0	ASP vs	The Hague	2-1
ASP vs	Antwerp	8-0	ASP vs	Stavanger	4-1
			ASP vs	ISB	0-3

This year the soccer team was organized, experienced and disciplined, except for certain games where ASP had poor team playing and bad luck. Although not as well prepared physically as other teams the ASP soccer team had better technique. The games they lost were usually against physically stronger teams, even though they did not possess the technical qualities of ASP's players.

The hardest problem which the team had to overcome was the synchronization between offense and defense. This difficulty was demonstrated in the game against Vienna with its 2-5 loss. The offense and defense were playing as two separate groups in total disaccord.

On the other hand, against The Hague, the team was perfectly organized and worked together harmoniously. Each pass found its receiver and each person filled his place.

On the whole it was an excellent season, and the team looks forward to a good spring season.

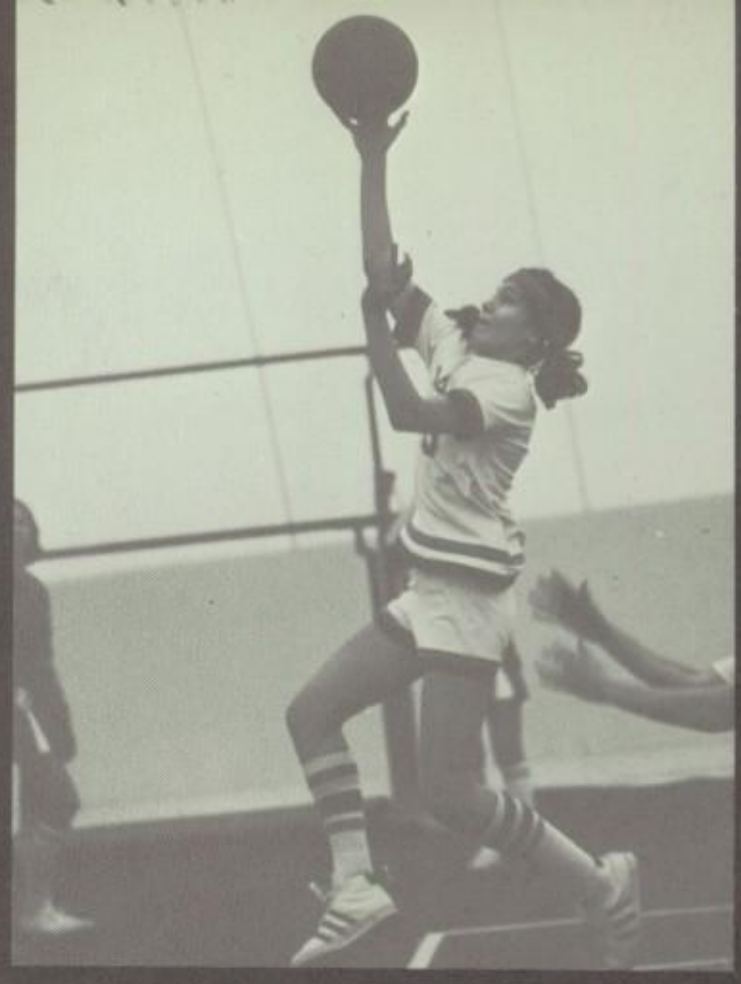
Girls' Basketball



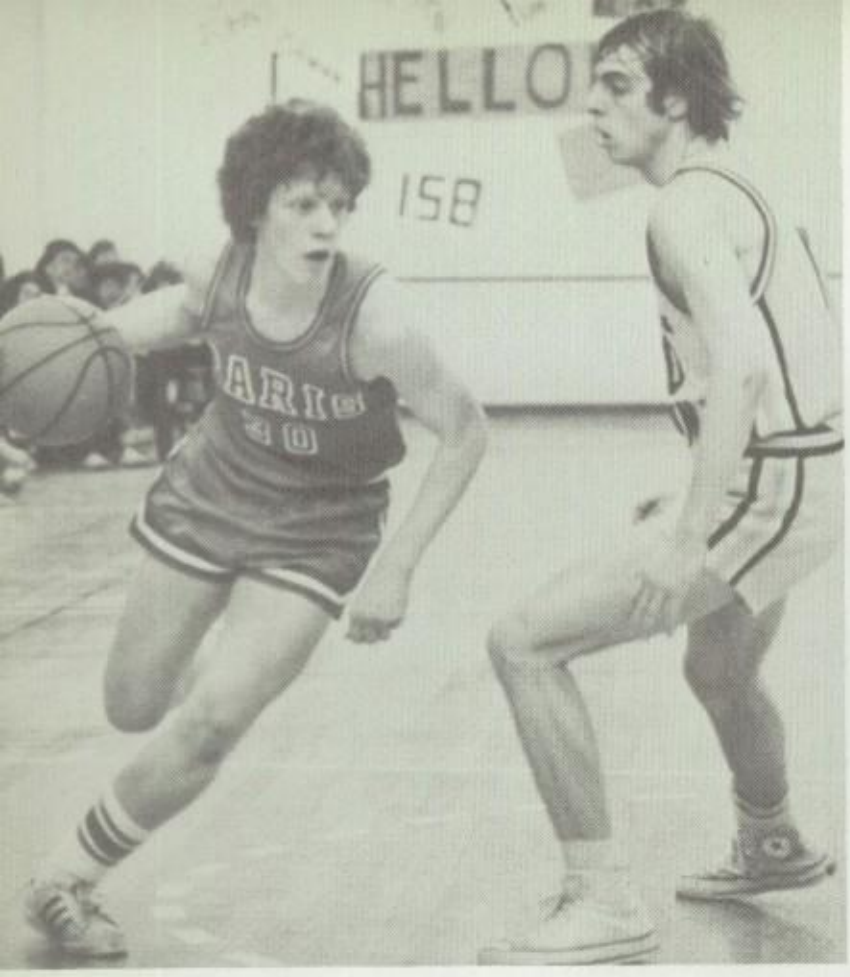
by Nancy Lucido

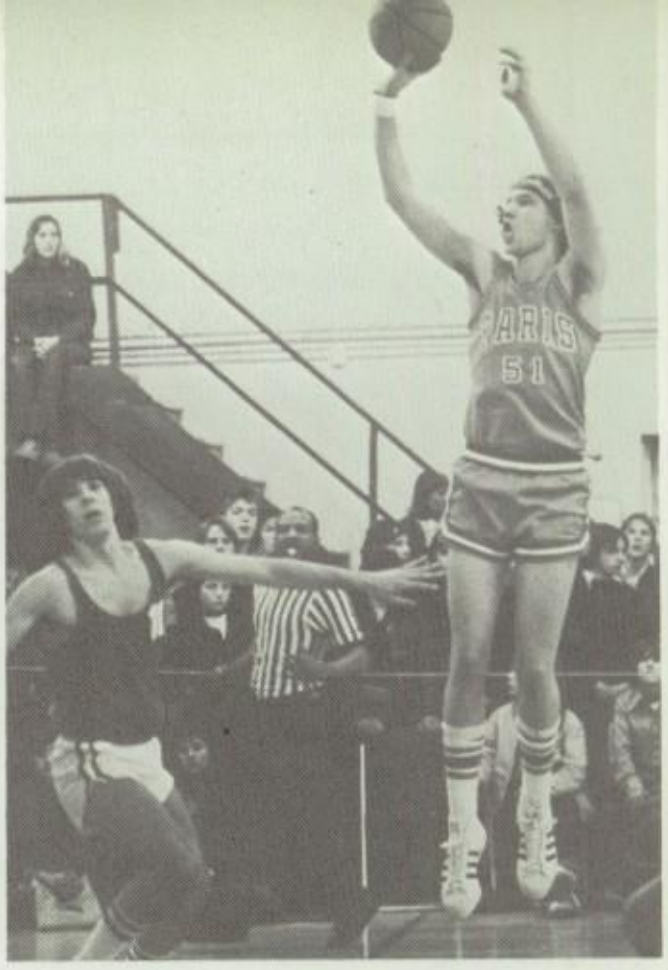
One word can sum up the 1975-76 basketball season: injury. With six out of twelve players being hurt at one time or another, it added up to a rough season. But the team pulled through.

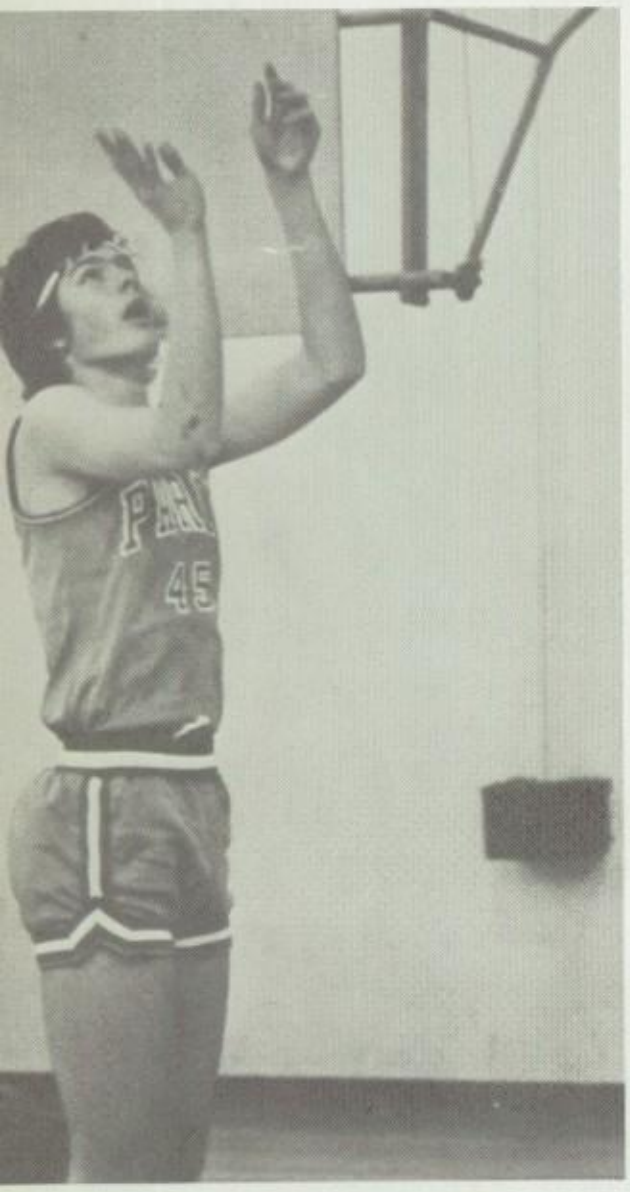
Nine of the twelve players were returning from last year to face a tough season with a new coach. Of the ten games played during the season, ASP won seven, lost three - a big improvement over last year's record. It was different ("Take five girls, I need a cigarette,") it was fun (celebrating at the Great American Disaster), it was hard work (hitting the café before practice. Did you ever try to shoot a moving basket?)

The tournament was disappointing, but it was rewarding. We lost to The Hague, winners of the tournament, by only one point, and finally placed fifth out of ten teams. The season was full of victories and defeats, but then, that's what basketball is all about.

Boys' Varsity







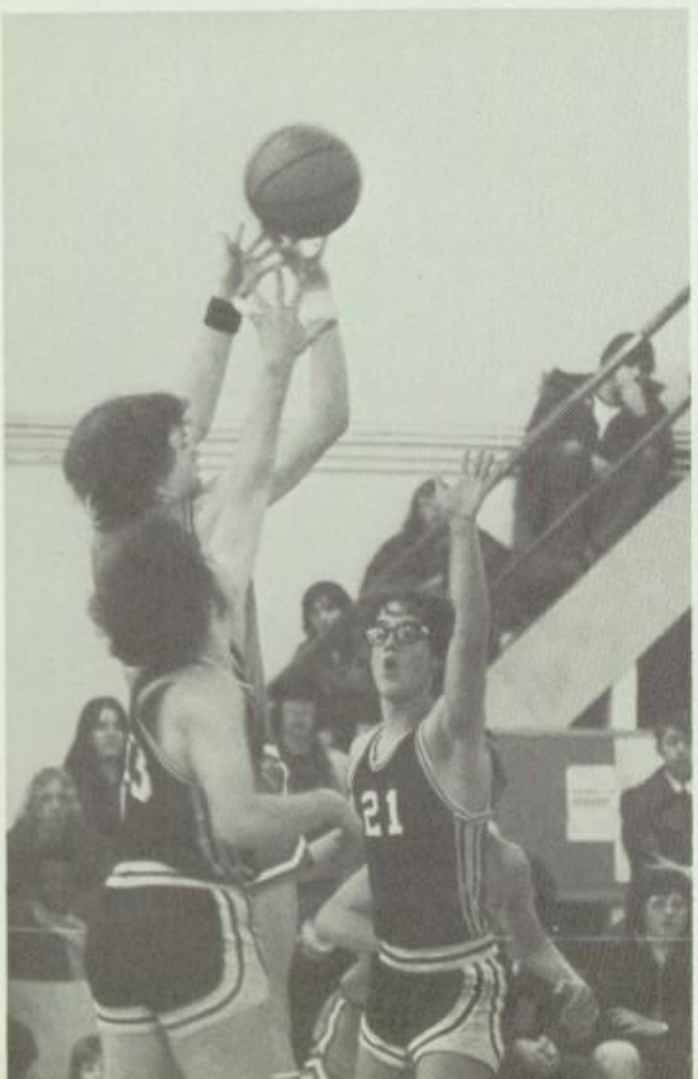
by John Hague

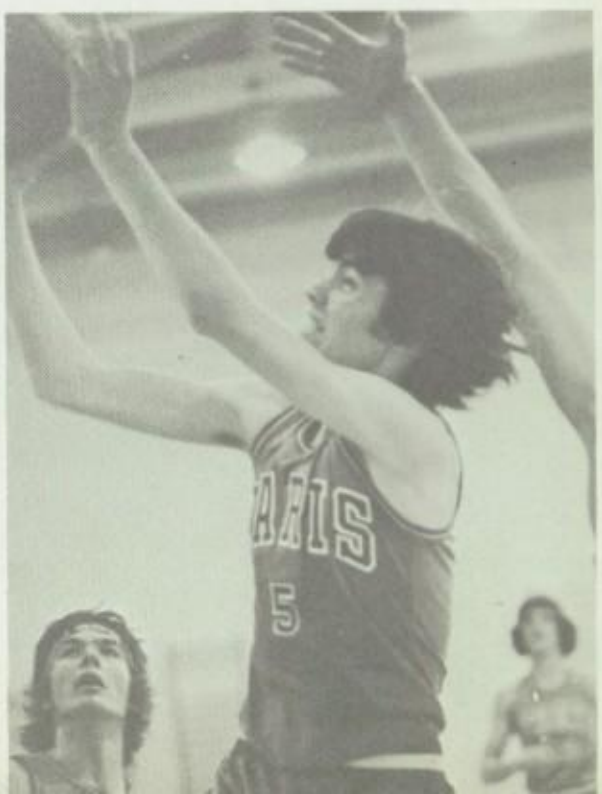
Teamwork, unselfishness, spirit and fun. These words only begin to describe the 1975-76 Varsity Boys Basketball Team.

Despite the misleading fifth place ASP tallied in the ISST Basketball Tourney, the team had a strong win/lose record. With a season record of 13-5, which included defeating St. John's twice, Frankfurt twice and demolishing the French Lycée Franklin of Paris, ASP players and supporters were distressed to see both Frankfurt and St. John's finish ahead at 3rd and 1st respectively at the annual tourney held in Paris.

Through the dedicated enthusiasm of the four senior players - John Hague (capt.), Mike Barndt, Brian Kryzkowski and Mike Pickard - the team progressed mentally, as well as physically as the season advanced. However, the real source of success came from the assiduous coach, Bob Marcucci, who imparted his knowledge of the game to all nine players.

The boys' team this year, in addition to the four seniors named above, included the following players: Kevin Henry, Bob Mandeau, Jim Rogers, Larry Henry, Rick Hoag, Andy Kassner.





JV Basketball

by John Michel

This year's basketball season was highlighted by the all-star playing of a certain talented writer without whom the team would never have obtained its fantastic 11-7 record. The rest of the team was good, too.

Under the expert coaching of Kevin (Hooper) Flanagan, the JV Rebels opened up a season with a stomp on The Hague. From there, however, it was more or less the Rocky Mountain Way though kind Bob Lalime did set us up with one last smear against the talented Lycée Franklin. Thanks to the lycée, most JV players are still on an ego trip.

Rugby

by Jim White

The Rugby team got off to a better start this year than anyone would believe by looking at the results. They were shut out in their first two games, losing 24-0 and 34-0 to ASL and ACBB respectively. The next one at 10-6 (ASL) looked a little better, but there was still plenty of room for improvement.

With the loss of two key players to the basketball team, enthusiasm dwindled and only ten players showed up for the next game. They suited up two spectators and Coach Jim Moriarty also played. Another loss - this time to Versailles.

Somehow, they got enough people to play another game. The "team" went off to Passy-Buzenval, only to lose again. It was disheartening to watch the opposition score eight points in the closing minutes.

The match with Wallace High School from Ireland was to be the climax of the season. With six of ASP's key players missing, the sun in their eyes and a 30 mph headwind, they couldn't put up much of a fight. But excuses can't cover up the score. Those guys literally ran over ASP with a 68-0 win.

The team pays tribute to Coach Moriarty, whose dedication and integrity paid off, and thanks Bob Lalime for some wonderful jerseys.

Crew

by Jim White

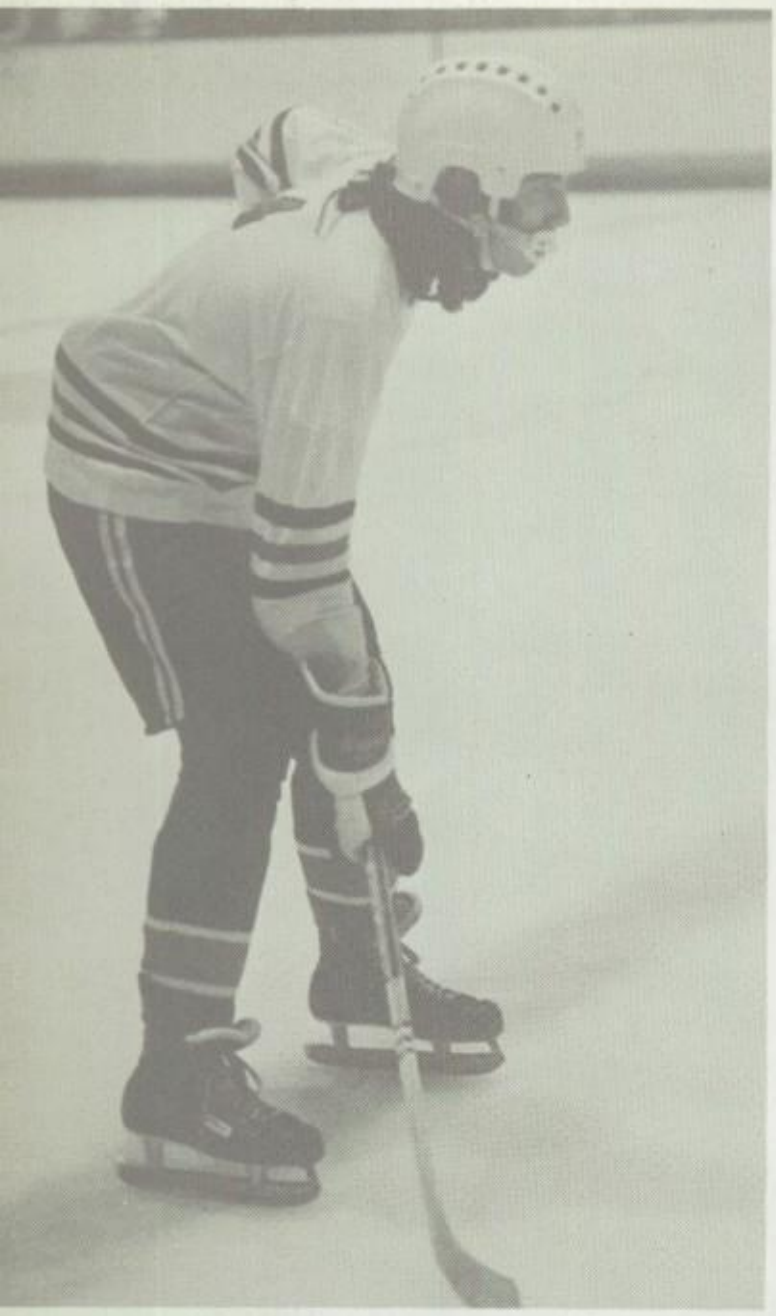
This year's crew team - four to twelve rowers, one coxswain and two coaches - started rowing in September. The actual racing season, however, didn't start till March and goes through July.

To date crew has raced twice, both very embarrassing encounters. In the first race they teamed up with four French guys from ASP's club (ACBB). As it turned out, they were four not so very talented rowers. ASP finished second out of two boats, and were awarded with "last place" medals.

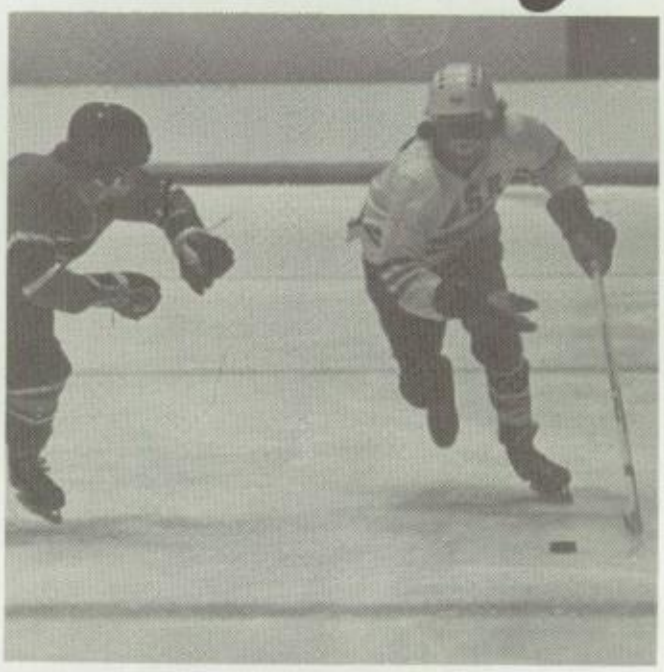
The second race was quite a heartbreaker. After bursting out of the start to a one-length lead, they settled down to a low cruising speed. But the other crew moved up on them and they couldn't increase the pace. As a result, they were eliminated in the first round.

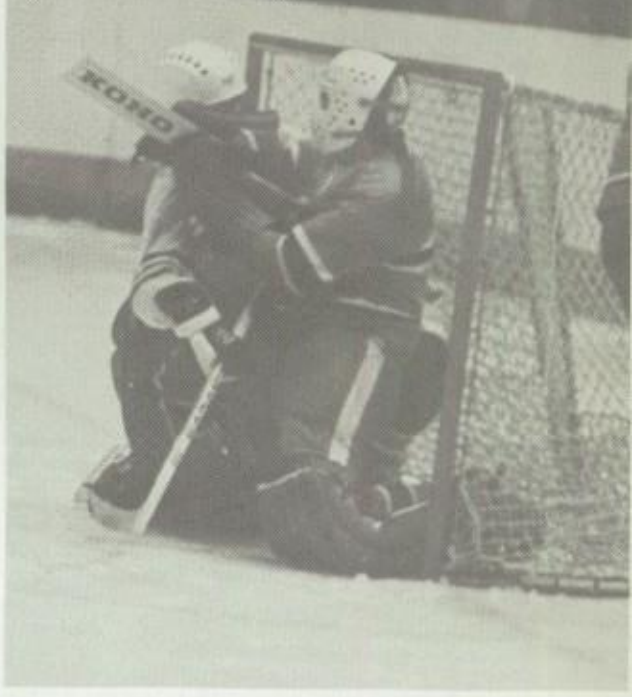
The season had just started at this writing, but crew members were looking forward to a race with Kent School, especially as the Kent boat was to be stroked by last year's ASP captain, Mark Tuttle. Towards the end of the season the crew plan to go to the Henley Royal Regatta at Henley-on-Thames.

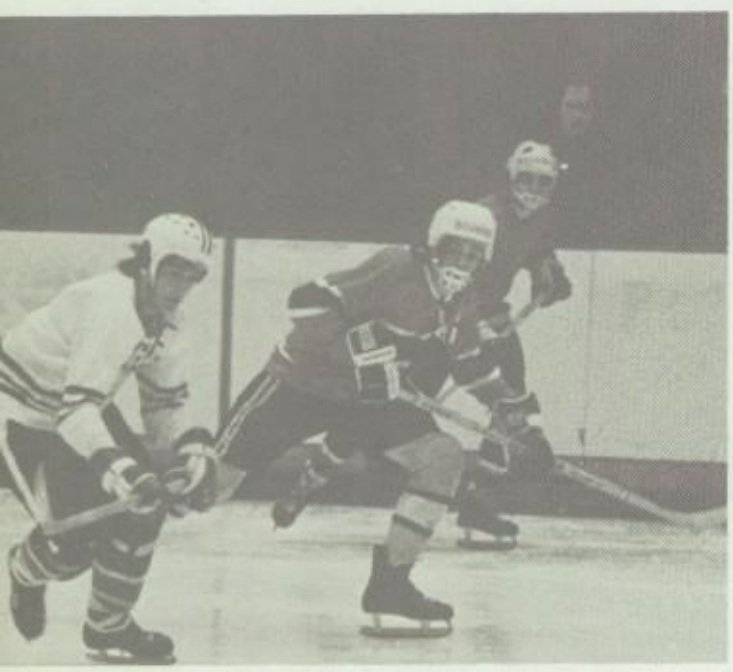
Coaches Bob Q. Lalime and Chris Cochry have done a good job - keeping up morale and the team's pants.



Ice Hockey







by Bob Steele

This year held something new and fast for ASP - ICE HOCKEY. Thanks to the initiative of a few interested students and especially "Do It" Bob Lalime, it was all made possible. Unless parents and players keep pulling for this sharp and most exciting sport, it may be cut in the future because of expenses.

The following team was coached by "Sieve," a young but tremendously slick coach:

Bob Steele, captain
Pat McCormick, assis. captain
Bob Russell, assis. captain

Nick Gehring	Malcolm Robinson
Tom Wight	Josh Thulin
Brian Kryskowski	John Rynski
Blake Buckley	Mike Coster
John Dulude	Todd Armstrong
Joe Kennedy	Ted Armstrong

The players have had experience from Canadian Junior League to Rowdy Pond hockey, and no one had ever played together before this year. Putting these facts together, the team has played extremely well against some classy foreign teams. The most intense game was a 2-2 tie on home ice against a very impressive SHAPE team.

Our record of 0-4-1 doesn't tell the story. The bus rides and on-ice performance really show how far this team has come, with still more ahead.

JV Cheerleading

Lori Talbot, tenth grade, was this year's captain of JV cheerleaders, with ninth-grader Francine Rheault as co-captain. Other JV members, who actually had one away game trip (to ISB), were Sheri Bradshaw (9th), Gena Thompson (10th), Leigh Platt (9th), Janet Brojan (8th), and Julie Barndt (8th). Miss Julie Kenyon was their coach.

Cheerleading Varsity

by Ginnie Oveson

ASP's Varsity cheerleading squad, like cheerleaders everywhere, made lots of noise, had a great deal of fun and stirred up a lot of spirit and enthusiasm. Stephanie Jones was captain of the squad, made up of four returning and four new cheerleaders.

The climax of the season came with the ISSB Tournament. After hours of poster-making and preparations for the nine other schools who participated, they had three full days of cheerleading.

Members of the 1975/76 Varsity squad were Stephanie Jones and Paula Rodgers (seniors), Louise Rheault, Carrie Martus, Ginnie Oveson, Jennifer Segré and Chris Greer (juniors), and a sophomore, Lori Klist.

Chorus

by Ned Hoffman

The 1975/76 American School of Paris Upper School chorus, after almost ten months of steady singing, actually became something exceptional. Evolving from a disorganized, out-of-tune mob of 112 students to a harmonious and devoted group, they managed to master numerous well-known tunes from "Ballad for Americas" to Mozart's "Coronation Mass."

Under the direction of Mr. Norman Proulx, the chorus held many well-received concerts. They entertained at the annual Orphan's Party, the American Embassy, the Bicentennial Birthday Party, a school for polio victims, and even at Munich, Germany. Mr. Proulx did a good job of varying the types of music they sang, as well as incorporating various bicentennial songs into their repertoire, which greatly helped to broaden the chorus's ability.

Jazz Band

by Bruce Dimon

The Jazz Band is a group of talented and energetic student musicians who have responded to the challenge of playing and performing professional-quality music, primarily for dancing.

As of March, when the yearbook went to press, the band had played at two Parent Faculty functions and at a restaurant. Some interesting things were lined up for the spring, such as a request to play at Strasbourg, where one performance was scheduled to be videotaped for French television. The band is also tentatively scheduled for other dances.

Members of the Jazz Band: RHYTHM ECTION: Jim Rodgers (9th) and Todd rmstrong (8th) - Drums; Bob Rodgers lumnus) - Electric Bass; Sherri Gossett 0th) and Steve Lospalluto (11th) - lectric Guitars; Theodore Armstrong 1th) - Piano; Bernard Yanotta aculty) - Lead Alto and Bandleader; odney Richardson (10th) - Alto; Bruce imon (11th) - Tenor. Student Council

by Danièle Lamarche

This year the whole Student Council system was reorganized. Instead of electing a president and vice-president for each grade, three equally delegated members were elected from each class to represent their ideas and to voice their opinions. Senior representative Matt Lawrence was chosen chairman of the group, Marie Stoess, secretary, and School Store manager Mark Farrelly was named treasurer.

Early in the year, specific committees concerning school affairs were formed in order to concentrate on various aspects of school life, with the council itself acting as a central organizer. This system, however, was only a partial success; committees lacked enthusiasm, student support, and eventually fell apart. Several dances, including a semiformal and greasers' dance, were held during the year - thanks to Michelle Dreyfuss, Jan Tarnoff, Curly Mallett and others. Larry Quinn ordered films to be shown at ASP, Marie Stoess made arrangements for the prom, to be held at the Tour Montparnasse. The publicity committee handled all those bothersome posters, bake sales, etc. The departure of senior representative Renée David for the U.S. was a great loss to the council as she worked hard on many projects. Joanne Robinson replaced her.

The Student Council took a while to get organized, with no constitution to follow and inexperienced representatives, but it left things in good order. Although the council was criticized by some students (including an unjust and biased analysis by CATALYST) most officers tried to improve school life. Special thanks to Mrs. Hague and Mr. Hart for attending all meetings and giving us support.

VSO

by Naomi Hirsch

VSO is always referred to by its initials, but in fact, it stands for Voluntary Service Organization. This club, comprising fifteen faithful members this year, tries to live up to its name by implementing various service projects in and around the ASP community. Albert Donnelly is the man behind the scenes who makes these projects tick and the group is grateful for his leadership.

"Operation Espoir" is the biggest project the VSO undertakes each year. Members lead the school in various fund-raising enterprises. This year's most successful venture was a Student Council raffle which raised 3,000 francs, half of which went to "Operation Espoir," the other half into the Student Council treasury.

The Lower School contributed money students earned through bake sales, toy sales and circuses. This year participation spread to the Middle School, where students have their own VSO group. On February 3, VSO presented three checks for 1,500 francs - to Frères des Hommes, the Paralysis Association (ADEPH) and Vietnamese Refugees Relief.

VSO sends several members to the American Hospital in Neuilly to work as candy-stripers each week. Every Friday delegates go to an old-age home in St. Cloud, to try to bring happiness into the dreary lives of many patients and old people.

Through Mr. Donnelly, the club has established varied Franco-American contacts. French schools attend such ASP functions as plays, concerts and the Arts Festival. A group of really nice handicapped kids from the Ecole Nationale de Garches come every Friday for an hour's conversation in English. ASP sends groups to visit lycées, and these schools reciprocate with visits to our school.

IPA

by Mike Friend

This year's International Political Association delegation from ASP attended its eighth Model United Nations held annually in The Hague. Five ASPers, representing Czechoslovakia-Stephanie Jones, Mike Friend, JoAnne Robinson, Chris Boicos and Rob Moore-debated such subjects as disarmament, decolonization, Angola and foreign aid. Despite the limitations of representing a Russian satellite, the group did a fine job and shared a worthwhile experience. Thanks to advisors Katherine Lee and Albert Donnelly for their support and assistance.

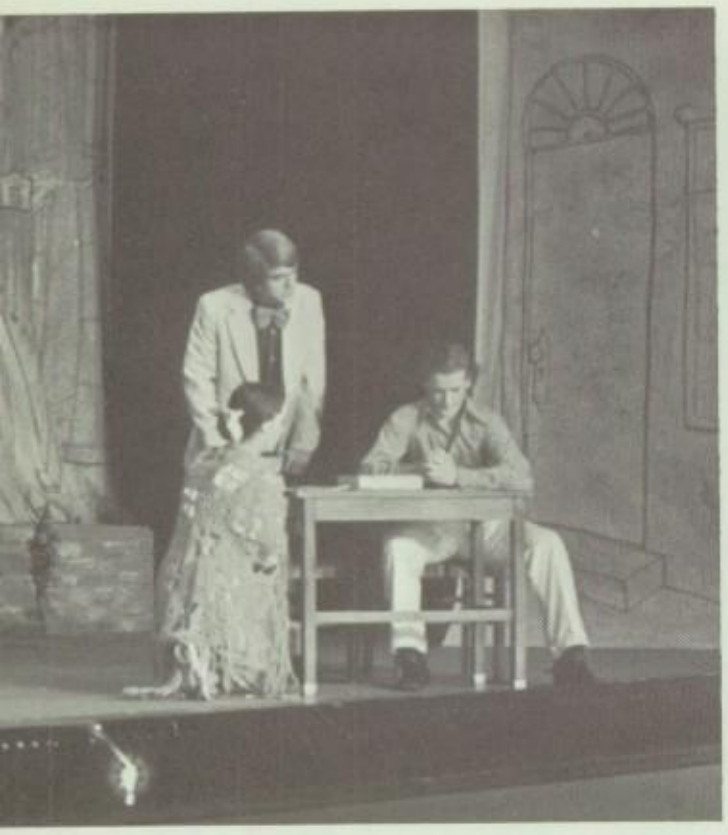
For three consecutive nights in November, a cast of almost fifty players presented "Inherit the Wind," which, judging by audience enthusiasm, can be considered a success.

But what will probably remain in the memories of the actors were those hectic, apprehensive, yet glorious moments between the scenes and backstage. Although nothing can compare to the thrill of opening night, each performance was an "emotional high" for principals and one-line parts alike. Every single actor was important to the play's outcome, and everyone joined in this hair-raising, spirit-lifting experience.

The real heroes of behind-the-curtain existence were the production staff, those vital individuals who were barely acknowledged but provided the background of the play. They're the ones who guided the constant, frantic rush.



While nervous actors searched their scripts to memorize forgotten lines, the production staff was busy distributing and collecting props, dressing up the characters and applying last daubs of make-up even as the houselights dimmed and the play was about to begin.

And during the play, they constantly provided assurance to the quivering, nail-biting performers. This tension and apprehension were not, however, regretted by anyone; it was an experience not to be missed. Although they rushed on-stage, spoke their lines, then dashed off, they immediately wished they could be back on that stage, milking the audience of repeated rounds of applause.

After the performance everyone felt a sort of relief and elation. Though the play itself seemed a bit banal and sucked dry to some, they would gladly have performed it many times over - to repeat this great experience, a crowning reward for two months of difficult, but enjoyable, effort.

Spirit/Catalyst

by Brad Hoffman, Editor

The critical moment in the journalistic year came at the beginning of second semester, when SPIRIT became CATALYST. The change was not in name only.

The innovation was intended to provide a more challenging news and opinion form. "To Bring About Change" was the paper's slogan. The object was to stimulate discussion and controversy.

Columns such as POINT/COUNTERPOINT, reflecting opposing points of view on critical issues, the FORWARD OBSERVER, an examination of happenings at ASP in a humorous yet constructively critical manner, have helped to focus on important issues facing students at this school. An even greater departure was the creation of ZACHARY FLANKTON. This column provided a platform from which responsible students could launch controversial broadsides.

Above all, CATALYST's purpose was to give a voice to the student body. This was the staff's legacy to ASP.

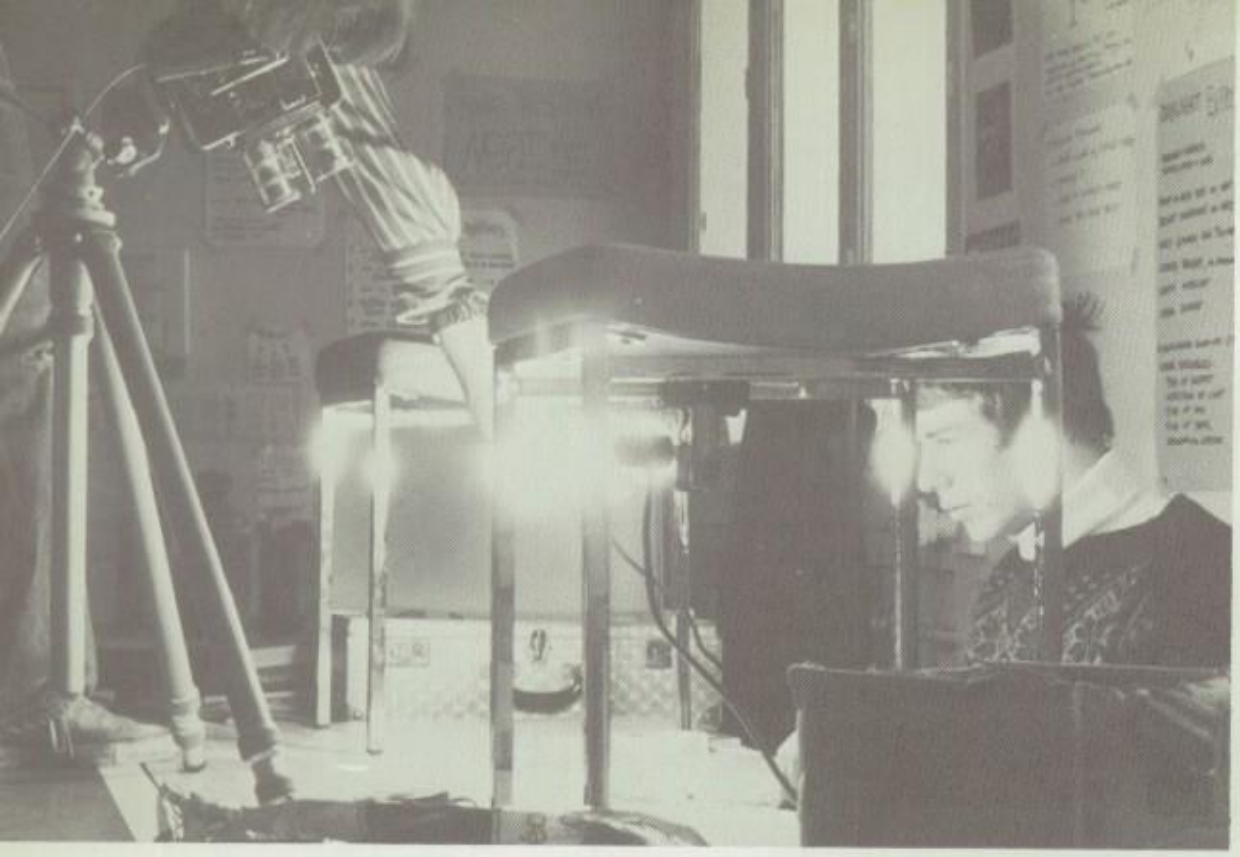
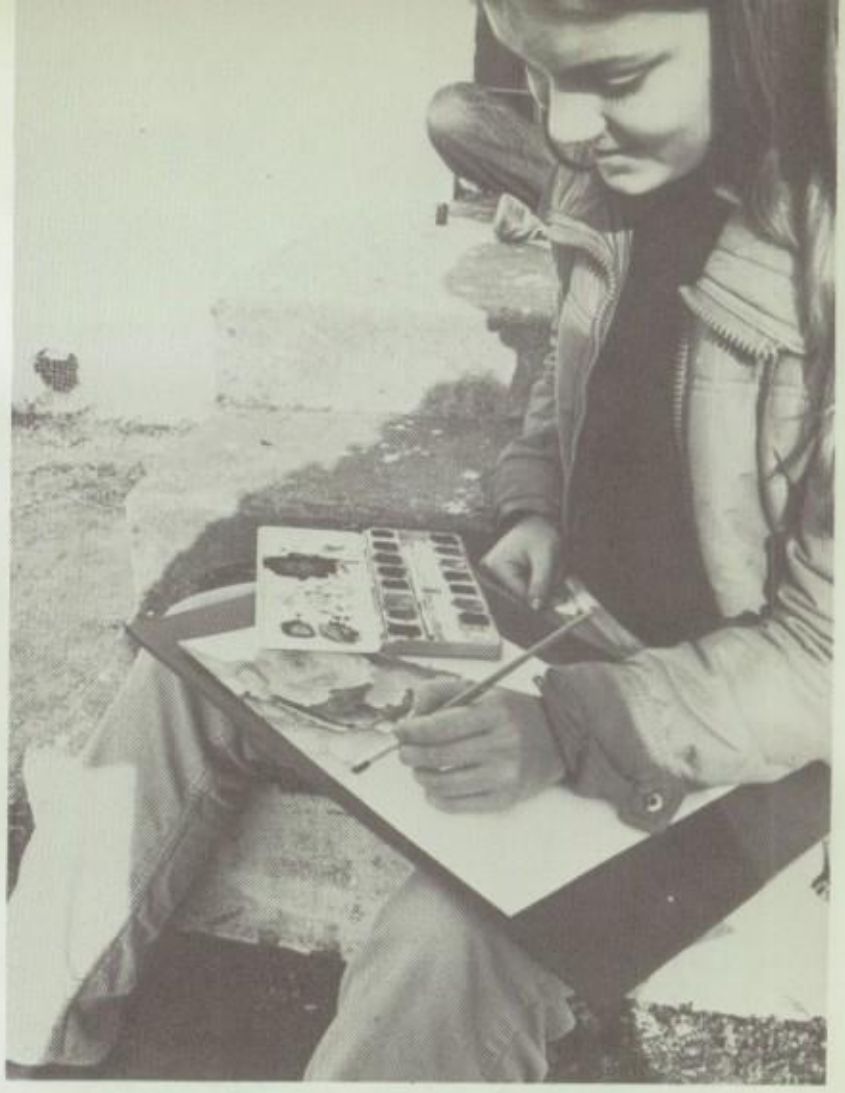
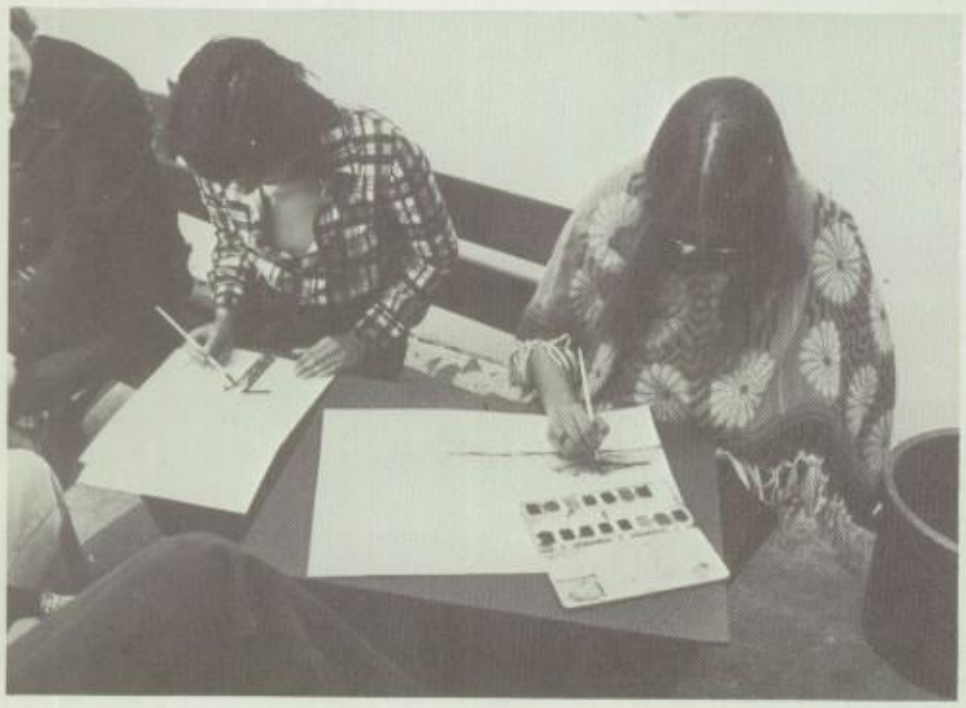
So what happened during the year? It started with the new schedules and students going out of their minds trying to find their classes. There were some new teachers too, including Mr. Jim Hart assisted Mrs. Hague while Pollicott was on his sabbatical. The first real excitement came with the riots on the Champs-Elysées - quite a few students were spectators during the skirmishes with the CRS, not to mention some others who were active participants. Student Council elections were held - its whole structure was reorganized - and there were many candidates this year. A new sport, ice hockey, was introduced to ASP; it was worth going to the games just to watch the players smash each other into the walls. In December, Renée David organized a party for the orphans, students aided by Mr. Donnelly and Miss Lee put on a Bicentennial Show and the Drama Department presented "Inherit the Wind," which gave Bob Malenfant, John Gero, Camille DuAime and quite a few other students the chance to prove themselves talented actors. As far as dances were concerned, there were quite a few - with tapes or bands, costumes, semi-formal or just normal. SPIRIT not only changed its name to CATALYST, but it also introduced several new features. SPIT, edited by Curly Mallet and Mark Lawrence at the beginning of the year, became CATASTROPHE after SPIRIT changed its name, and it was taken over by John Rynski and Gilbert Amardeil. LE SAVANT, a newspaper that was totally student-run, appeared and caused quite a bit of controversy. The Basketball Tournament held in Paris included ten teams from all over Europe and was well-attended by both students and teachers - so well attended during school days that Mr. Hart and Mrs. Hague were overwhelmed with so many notices of students who skipped classes that they gave up and decided not to send notices home. Before the final games, our teams showed real spirit when they ran out onto the court, boys clad in cheerleader outfits and girls in the boys' uniforms - at least the other schools can't call us poor losers! The School Store was efficient and halfway through the year began selling ham and cheese sandwiches and a hot Indian specialty. It was a profitable project and it relieved many "energetic" students from a trip all the way to the café for lunch. A tape deck was also installed in the store - the first one didn't last long, but it was eventually replaced. Music was a real asset in the Bubble and created a cheerful atmosphere. People complained a great deal about vandalism, what with lockers being torn apart, money stolen and building defaced, but then again, many people never stopped to think about the students who did constructive things, like holding a bake sale to raise money for a new tape deck. Scores of students traveled to Egypt, Bardonnechia or Turkey and almost everyone was delighted with where he went. Another big event in March was the production of "Bye Bye Birdie" - so enjoyed that several people went to see it twice. Spirit in ASP as a whole wasn't very notable at the beginning of the year, but as time went by, people became more interested in what went on, and if you think about it, there really was an improvement.

Pulling together a yearbook is no easy job, as anyone who has worked on l'ANNEE will assure you. Unfortunately, as usual, it came down to a group of only five people who really worked on the book; it was great fun staying up till four or five in the morning doing layouts on the weekends. Much credit should go to Jerry Klein who persistantly called companies for advertisements (few people realize that the amount of color in the yearbook depends on how many companies support us with ads) - even though we didn't put in the promised full color page of Jerry, we dedicate all pages beyond 237 to him. Nancy Lucido and Marta Hazlett were also irreplaceable - identifying pictures, doing layouts and bullying photographers who didn't hand in their pictures. Often, we ran into problems - ". . .he still hasn't handed in the copy . . . the whole group stayed after and the photographer didn't show up and I didn't know what to do . . . who wants to do a final? . . . have you figured out who Fatima Bore is yet? - no, but we know it's a girl and according to the latest gossip, she's married . . . you'd better hold me down. Otherwise, I'm liable to go out and strangle a few people . . . Mrs. Cook, what do I do now? . . . how does Bob Steele manage so skillfully to get himself in almost every picture spread?. . ."

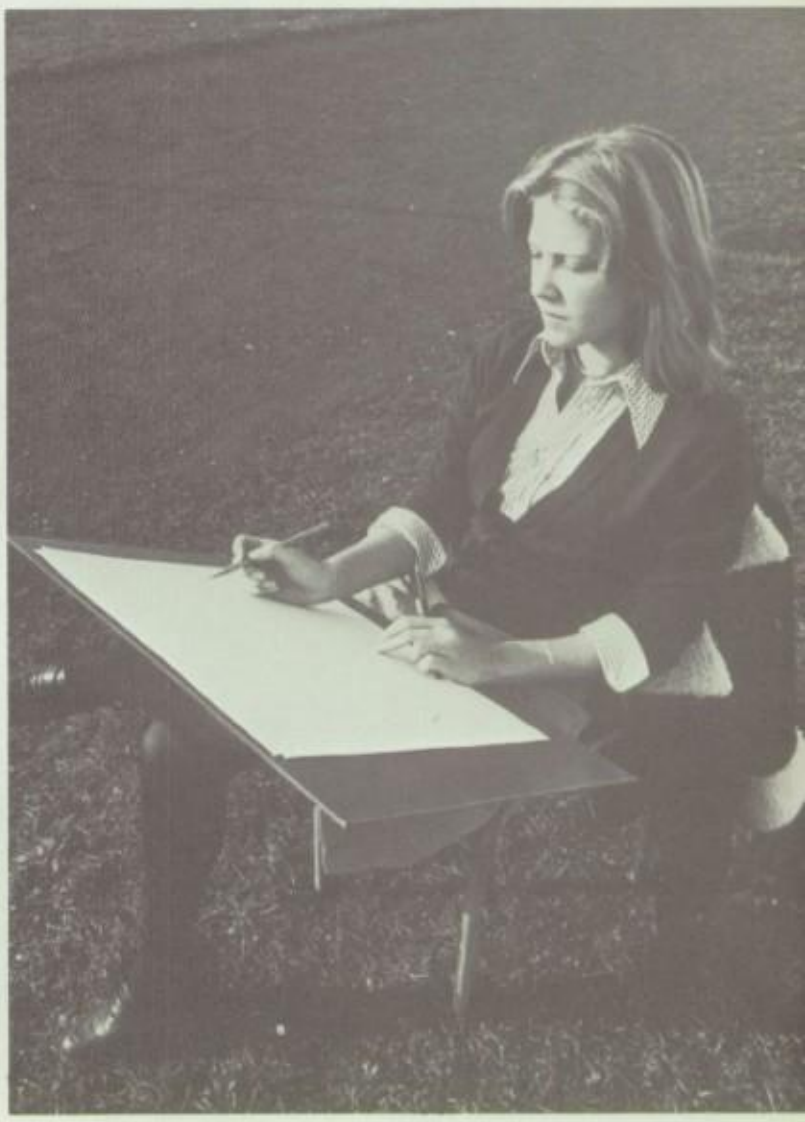
It was hard, but somehow, we made it. "I wish I had a camera!" How many times have you heard that? In this yearbook, we directed our efforts towards catching every aspect of the year. l'ANNEE 76 shows students hanging around the smoking area, walking through that Latin Quarter, sitting in the Bubble or in those "once in a lifetime" photos. In other words, it shows school life through the eyes of an ASPer. We hope that the book isn't just a mass of pictures but that the photos really depict students' characters, and convey a true feeling about the year.

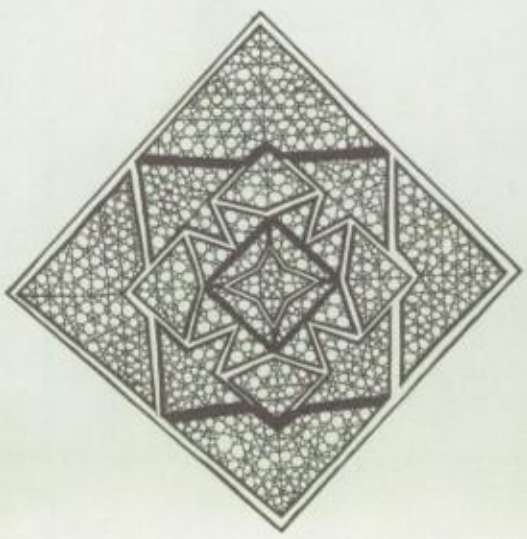






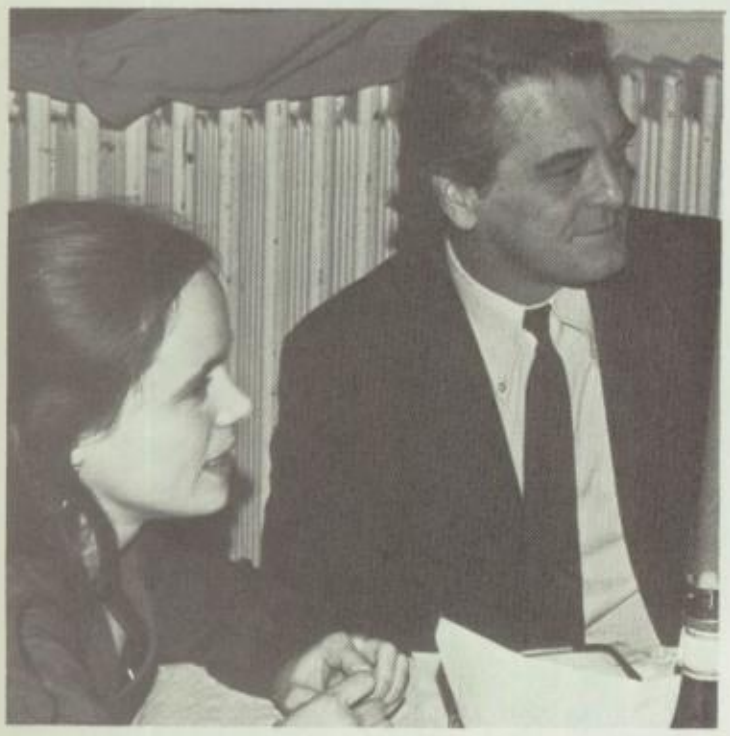
Canon





In December, 80 orphans were invited to a "Christmas party" at ASP. The celebration was organized by Renée David, and dozens of students contributed baked goods and presents. J. C. Catillier performed a magic show for the occasion, and Mr. Levin played his traditional "Santa Claus" role, as he is so well suited for the part. Much credit must be given to those who set up and decorated the auditorium as well as to the chorus who sang for the orphans.

Orphan's Party



Over 150 people attended the Semi-Formal Dinner/Dance held in January. Organized by Danièle Lamarche and Jan Tarnoff, the dance featured the ASP Jazz Band, who played during dinner, a comedy team and two bands - Yellow Snow and Crosswinds. The dinner menu included salad, chicken and a mixture for dessert. Most students enjoyed themselves, and considered the dance a success.

Semi-Formal Dinner/Dance

This year ASP hosted the ISST Basketball Tournament, which was held Feb. 6-7-8-9. The tournament consisted of ten teams, instead of the usual eight. All games were played at ASP, the boys in the gym and the girls in the Bubble.

In the boys' games, any one of five teams had a shot at the title. However, the top three teams, in the end, were London, The Hague and Frankfurt. ASP was eliminated from the semi-finals by losing two very close games by a total of six points, and settled for fifth place.

For the girls, there were also a number of teams with a good chance for the cup. The top three teams were The Hague, London and Stavenger. ASP had to be content with fifth place, eliminated from the semi-finals in a heartbreaking one point loss.

An all-star team was selected from the ten best tournament players. Bob Mandeau, Mike Barndt and Laurene von Klan were chosen from ASP.

Though the tournament involved a lot of effort from everyone, there were also a lot of laughs and an all-around pleasant atmosphere. Robert Q. Lalime did a great job of organizing the whole thing.

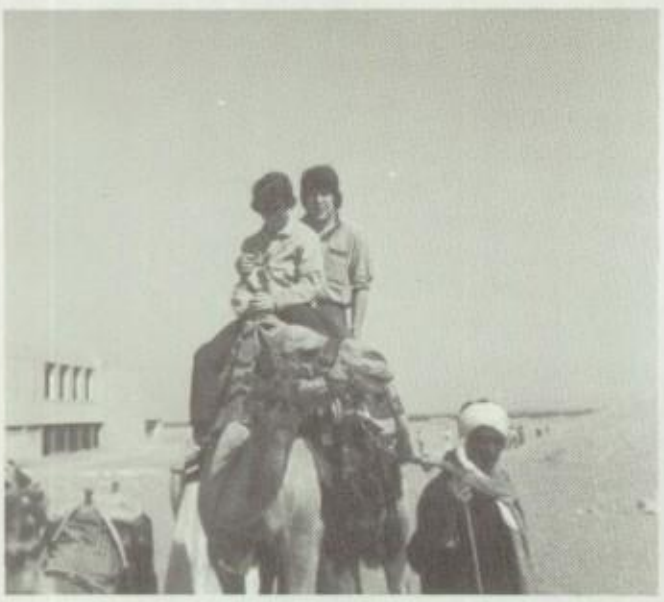
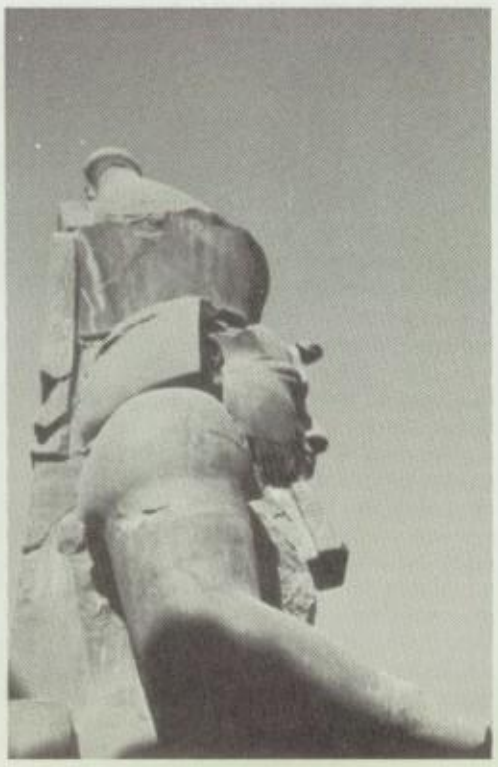
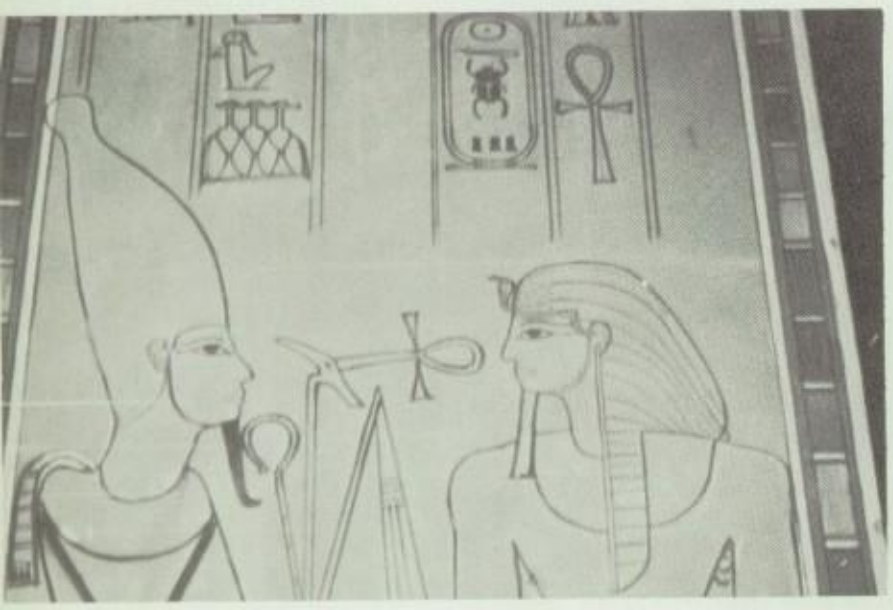
This year's foreign venture was to the distant land of Egypt. Visiting three major cities - Cairo, Luxor and Aswan, - the group of ninety-six students and teachers shared a memorable and worthwhile experience. Though plagued by some illnesses, they saw a broad spectrum of what Egypt had to offer, including the pyramids, the Aswan dam, the Sphinx and many notable ruins. The weather was fantastic, with sunshine every day. Some made it down to the pool, others "raided" the local Egyptian flea market. The night life was a bit different - carriage rides, visiting mosques, having private tours from too-willing Egyptians, giving "bachshish" to everyone, spending the night cramped in a train compartment or checking out the local environment. It was a lot of fun, even with meat and potatoes EVERY night, sharing a bathroom with fifty other people and living in confining quarters for nine nights. Everyone owes a lot to Mr. Irving Levin, who put such a lot of effort (and even went into nursing) into making the trip a success. The Egypt trip was a cultural and educational experience and a pleasure for all who traveled on it.





Egypt Trip



Ski Trip

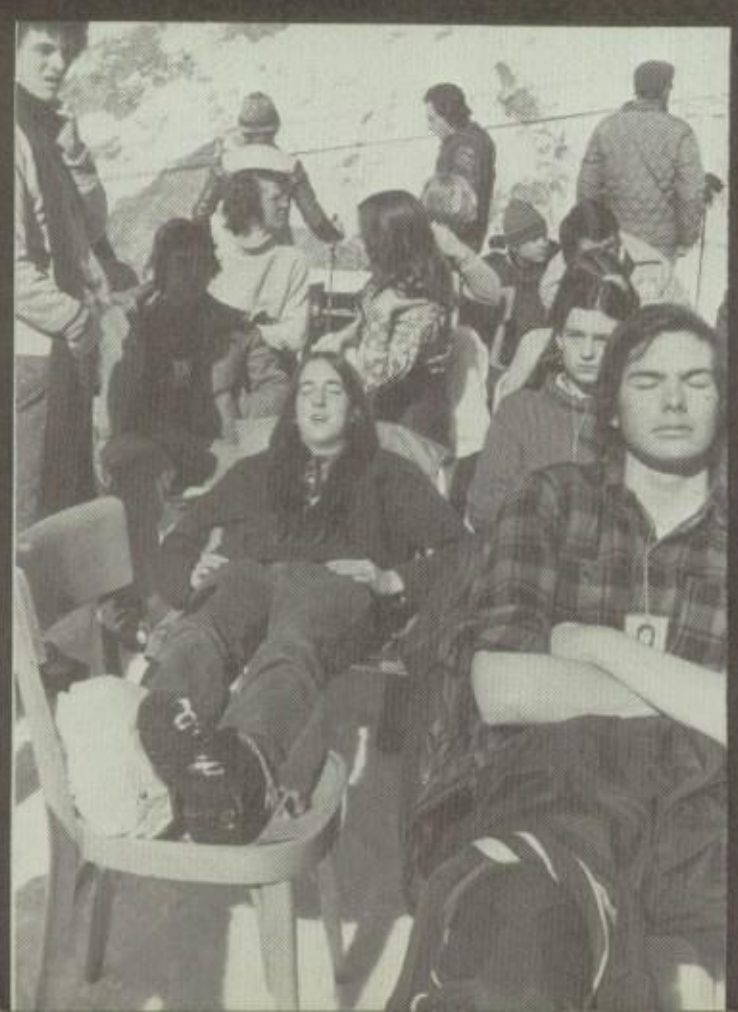
by Danièle Lamarche

Hearty ASPers took over Bardonecchia for eight days of skiing in February. Members of the school's troop soon invaded the entire town, using the café at the top of the mountain as daytime headquarters and occupying the Riki discothèque at night.

A surprisingly large number of students proved to be excellent skiers and descended the slopes in exasperatingly good style; others spent more time in the snow than on their skis. It snowed on all but the last day, so there was both packed and powdered snow, but unfortunately, the weather included lots of fog and wet snow. Therefore, many discouraged skiers spent their time listening to "Happy Together" in the café. Nevertheless, most people plowed their way down (or off) the slopes regardless of the conditions. Before long, several skiers were seen hopping along in casts, not to mention the injured who were forced to skip around for a few days.

When the devoted group wasn't on the mountains they could be found in the local pizzerias, bakeries, food stores or cafés and discos, depending on the time of day. Almost everyone participated in nightly sprints back to the hotel, with side stops to cream Italians in snowball fights. Even so, most students managed somehow to be in their rooms by curfew hour.

At the time of departure, the head waiter and hotel owners were undoubtedly the only people celebrating. The trip was a real pleasure for all, and much credit must be given to Mr. Sefton and the other chaperones for making it possible.



What a chugger!

The School Store would like to thank all of its 1975-76 supporters, without whom the store would not have been as successful as it was. We, the managers, were glad to have been able to expand the store's product range and hope that, in the year to come, the store will continue to improve. We'll drink to that! (Cokes, of course.)

Kath-

I've signed a lot of yearbooks since ninth grade, and for some reason I DKnow that this one will be the hardest. To me, it is the hardest thing in the world to express your love for someone with a pen, but I'll try and make you see how much you mean to me anyway. If I don't succeed, then just bear in mind that no matter how this comes out, I love you. For some reason which I fail to understand, I never seem to get along in the beginning with people who end up being my closest friends. I'll never forget the first time I saw you - the vibes weren't too good were they? But after things started screwing up with Mike, I realized that I needed someone, and I kind of closed my eyes and picked you; never knowing the outcome- solely hoping that it would work. And it worked babes, thank God. I don't think (in fact I'm sure) that anyone has ever meant so much to me in so little time as you have. You've always been there; any time I felt the slightest bit of depression or bitchiness I knew that I could turn to one person and one person only for comfort and help - you. And you know as well as I that there were quite a few times when comfort and help were needed - in both our cases.

Well K, we've been through one hell of a lot haven't we, we've laughed as hard as I have ever laughed together, and cried as hard as I have ever cried together. I feel as if you are a part of me, and someone

Dear Katherine,
Well, it was nice while it lasted but.... don't worry about it (me). This year went too fast but I enjoyed it a lot. Good times all year round. I'll never forget. Of course, us R.E.D people are really cool! Don't forget all the RED things in school and around Town, actually I should be using a red pen! I hope you have fun this summer travelling in Europe, and enjoy your college. Just remember Bob when he asks you to go fishing in the RED Thanks for a swell time at the prom. Take care.

bout.

is trying to break away my best part by making you leave. From Biddy to little K, I have learned something every day about that super person from that crazy place Connecticut. Places that we've gone, trips that we've made (in more ways than one) will be on my mind and in my heart forever. If I went through all of them, it would take me the entire yearbook, and even then I doubt I could get them all in. You've given me so many good memories, and through our mutual understanding of a lot of people we have learned to be more real and sincere than most. I'm sure that last statement means a hell of a lot to you, because, like me, we have run across a lot of people this year who have taken us for granted, and if it wasn't for our never failing friendship, I doubt we would have made it. But although you have been through some real bummers this year K, you have come out a better person because of it, and you still managed to help me through the bummers that I had to experience. That means so much to me, because a true friend is there is there even when he or she is having problems too. I thought for awhile that things were going right for both of us for a change, but once again I was wrong. Even though it hurts, I know that I can count on my Bergy to help me through one more time.

RED

Something that came new to me this year was the feeling of jealousy about my friends. I had this horrible feeling every time someone else even looked at you that I was liable to shoot them !! They took even a few minutes of my time with you away. I felt that every second was important to the strength of our relationship, (although it couldn't get much stronger than it is now) because I knew that we had so little time. I even found myself thinking about Kathy before I thought about the latest guy, ③ and that is when I finally knew how much I needed you.

Well little K, it's finally over. All the sorrows and the joys have come to an end, at it's time for us to follow new roads. Wherever you go and whatever you do, I want you to remember that you are one of the greatest people alive, and don't get yourself into anything that isn't you all the way. You've tried that a lot this year, and you know it doesn't work, so keep it in mind always. And there is one more thing that I want you to keep in mind always - me. Of all the people I have ever known you're the one I want to know always. So don't forget that "little" person that you spent your senior year with; who you helped so much to grow and to love, and don't forget ever that she will always be around through good times and bad. Kathy, I really love you. Through all the changes that I have made the one thing that hasn't changed is that I love you. I'll miss you so much next year, I really don't know what I'm going to do. Take care of yourself, love and be loved, and keep on going the way you are now. If the road you choose to follow gets rough,
